

HUNDREDS MAKE PILGRIMAGES TO HOUSE OF THE GLORIFIED VISION.

Devout Relic Hunters Swarm About the Building in Yonkers in Which an Apparition of Julia Murray Appeared to Those Who Watched Beside Her Corpse.

Since it has become known to thousands of persons that nine watchers over the corpse of Julia B. Murray, who died in her parents' home, No. 154 Ashbourne avenue, Yonkers, at the age of eighteen, saw the spirit of the girl on the wall of the room in which she passed away, all the members of the family are kept busy in protecting the home from relic seekers.

Crowds of persons visited the house early to-day to gather pieces from the wall, from the woodwork, from the furniture and from the outside of the house.

Rev. Father Lange, pastor of St. Joseph's, across the street, of which Julia Murray was a devout member, as were all but one of those who say they saw her spirit in the room in which she died, is quite angry over the affair. He declined to talk about it to-day. "It is all nonsense," he said. "These people say nothing—they must have been asleep."

Father Brady, who was pretty Julia Murray's confessor, however, said mildly: "I can't explain it. It is a remarkable thing. Certainly a person must have led an unusually fine life to be permitted to return in the spirit to those they loved on earth. We do not attempt to explain it."

Trying to Solve Mystery.

The Murphys, mother, son and two daughters, lived on the upper floor. The flat is of five rooms—parlor, bedroom, where Julia died, and the ghost was seen; another bedroom, dining room and kitchen in a row from the south front toward Ashbourne avenue.

The body lay, completely covered, on a slab in the bay window in the parlor, with a candelabra at its head. On the west wall is a small mantel mirror, and this reflected the light of the candles upon the north half of the wall in the first bedroom.

It was against this half of the wall that the apparition was seen. There was no sun that morning. It rained, besides the apparition moved slowly upward and vanished through the ceiling, quite contrary to what would happen if a riving can had cast its reflection from the mantel mirror through the parted portiere into the bedroom.

All these things are told and discussed by the people who gather in groups about the scene of the mystery, and no one has yet offered an explanation of the

THE VISION, DRAWN BY MISS KATIE KANE.

She was the first to see the apparition and made this sketch exclusively for The Evening World. She intends later to draw it in oil.

Miss Kane's Version.

Her best friend and cousin, Katie Kane, of No. 30 Orange street Brooklyn, saw the apparition first.

Miss Kane is a devout Catholic, and at present is taking the State Regents' examination in a convent. She is seventeen years old and a beautiful type of the young American girl.

This is her story of the version, told in her own simple way:

"I was tired and went from where the body was lying, the parlor which faces St. Joseph's Church across the street, to a new room. It was there that Julia died."

The Radiant Vision.

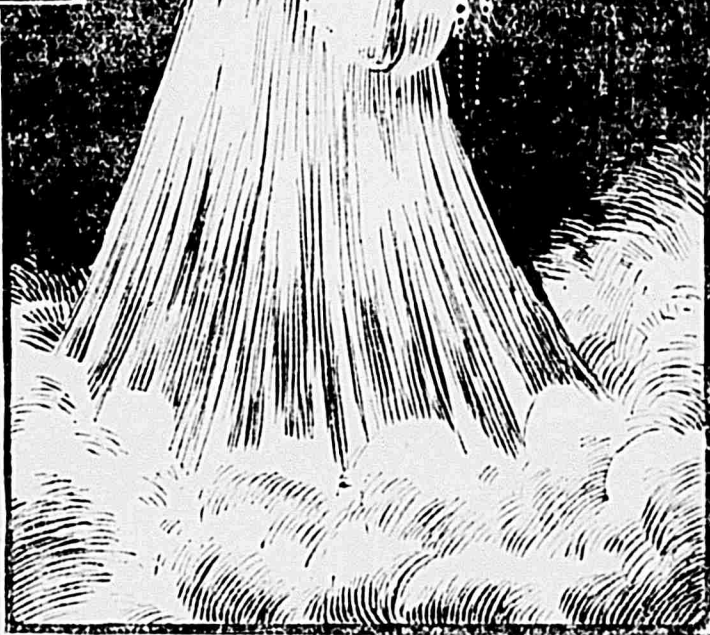

"I was sitting by the bed and was about to put my head on the pillow (and it was then 4 o'clock) when suddenly I saw a brilliant light on the wall."

"As I raised my head I saw Julia standing with her arms crossed at the wrists across her chest and her head bowed. Her hair was streaming (she had beautiful long hair) down her back. Around her forehead I could see a wreath of small flowers."

"From her clasped wrists hung a long string of beads and a crucifix. Her head was bowed. A loose gown hung from her shoulders and drifted into a cloudy effect. Clouds also hung over her head."

Immigration Record Broken.

The North German liner Grosser Kurfurst, from Bremen, broke the record in the number of immigrants she landed yesterday. She brought 1,554.

SMASHED PLATE GLASS.

Six Windows, Worth $150, Broken in Clothing-Store Front.

Six large plate-glass windows in the clothing store of Mrs. Levy, at Nos. 119-

125 Walker street, corner of Baxter, were broken early today.

The plates cost $5 each. Rocks had been hurled through them.

No attempt was made to carry off the glass in the show case, though theft was probably the incentive of the mischief.

DRINK CAUSED SEXTON'S RUIN.

Nylin, Charged with Theft, Makes Pitiful Confession.

Charged with stealing a hat worth $1.25, Wilhelm Nylin, who until last December had been sexton of the Catholic Methodist Episcopal Church at One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and Seventh avenue, was before Magistrate Pool in the Harlem Police Court, today.

Henry N. Cohen, a salesman in a men's furnishing store on Eighth avenue, near One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, said Nylin put on a brown felt hat and ran out. The clerk followed him to One Hundred and Thirtieth street, where a policeman arrested him.

"Drink has been the cause of my downfall, your Honor," said Nylin. "I live with my wife and three children at No. 222 Fifth avenue. For six years I was sexton of the church. I saved $1,000 and put it in a flat building, but lost it all because I could not meet the mortgage. Then I lost heart and began to drink. I lost my place as sexton, too. I do not know why I stole the hat. I must have been crazy."

After hearing the story, the complainant withdrew the charge and the case was dismissed.

FIRST CRIME IN OSSINING.

Woman of Newly Named Town Robbed and Beaten.

Anne Garnisch, twenty-six years old, was attacked by a highwayman on Ossining (formerly Sing Sing) last night and after being robbed of her pocket-book was knocked down with a club and left lying insensible on the road.

Last evening she visited friends and was on her way home when she was stopped in a lonely district by an unknown man.

She was found lying in the street unconscious some time afterward by a passerby, and is seriously injured.

The pocket-book contained $10.75 in money. The robber ran toward the railroad station, and it is believed he took a train for New York.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS at The Wanamaker Store

A thousand copies of a single book in a single day at one store would not be thought a mean figure at any time anywhere, but the thousand-a-day record has actually been surpassed in the present notable distribution of the International Association of Newspapers and Authors. Even the book trade wonders how it can be done; how a copyrighted book regularly priced at $1.25 can be practically reproduced and profitably sold at only twenty-five cents. Yet so it is. Of course all who look at the

SPLENDID VALUES

And splendid values they are—in authorship, literary quality, manufacture and general attractiveness.

Paul Leicester Ford's popularity is almost unmatched. Strong in plot-development, adroit in pen-pictures, charming in portrayal of love episodes, his books find sure lodgment in the esteem of the reading public.

Max Pemberton in point of popularity is Mr. Ford's English prototype, and during the past five years he has also gained a wide audience in America. He is a master in the school of historical fiction. In the unusual distribution now going on these two clever authors are respectively represented by two of their cleverest productions—

"The Great K. & A. Train Robbery" and "A PURITAN'S WIFE."

Of Mr. Ford's bright romance of railroad life the New York Herald says:—"The clever manner in which the plot was carried out is well told, and the many perils from which the hero of the book escapes by a hair's-breadth are graphically described. Altogether, it is an exciting story of adventure."

"A Puritan's Wife" is the special offering for the present week. It is a valuable copyrighted production which has never been regularly sold for less than $1.25, yet the large operations and economical plan of the International Association of Newspapers and Authors place this and other choice books (a new one each week) within the reach of all by dropping the dollar and making the price only Twenty-five Cents a copy

And remember, every book is fresh from the binder's hands. It is wonderful that a new copyrighted $1.25 book can be handed out to you for a quarter. But so it is, all because author and publisher surrender royalty and profit for a time in exchange for wide publicity, which means future benefit, but the big end of the bargain is where it ought to be—with the book-buying public. All in all, this distribution constitutes
